WASHINGTON, October 22.-A telegran from Chicago October. 21st says: A myste riom Chicago Octobers 21st says: A mysterious and important arrest was made here to-day under orders from Chief Brooks, of the Secret-Service force at Washington. An officer of the Secret Service, accompanied by City-Delective Simmons, boarded an incoming train on the Pittsburgh and Fort Wayne road, and on its arrival here arrested a large, forid-complexioned man, who had been described in the Washington orders office and searched. In one of his satchels, which he had been kicking around care which he had been kicking around care-lessly on the train, $250,000 in United States bonds were found wrapped up in a dirty shirt, and also $8,000 in currency. The prisoner was taken privately before a judge and held in $25,000 for examination on Sat-urday, and is now locked up in the mar-th Pacifics all seconds birm design design. shal's office, all access to him being denied and the greatest secrecy preserved, in com-pliance with the directions of Attorney-General Devens. The prisoner is supposed to be a defaulter to the Government at some point outside of Washington.

A telegram from Chicago received at the Treasury Department to-day concerning the mysterious arrest states that it has been ascertained that the man arrested is James B. Doyle. He was born and raised in Bradford, Ili., married to a daughter of the noted counterfeiter Brad. Foster, and has spent much of his time in Colorado. Heis farmer and a lumberman, and is reputed to be very wealthy. The Secret Service have information to the effect that Doyle has been engaged in "crooked" transactions ever since the war. According to advices received Doyle has on his person two hundred and eleven $1,000 United States coupon bonds, sixes, of the loan of July 17 and August 5, 1861. There were also found twenty-seven genuine $100 United States treasury notes and two $100 national bank notes. These bonds have been generally pronounced genuine by ex-perts. The prisoner is said to be very reti-cont. He maintains that there is certainly some mistake about his arrest.

After considerable delay, Chief Brooks has obtained from his Chicago agent the numbers of eighteen of the bonds. Upon comparing these with the records of the loan division of the Department it is found that eleven of the genuine bonds bearing have been redeemed, and of the balance of the list it is shown that the numbers now on these bonds were not those originally issued to the parties whose name is in the body of the bond. This clearly demontrates that the bonds found in the possession of Doyle have all been changed from heir original numbers-tnat is, they are bonds that have been stolen, and their numbers changed, so as to enable their being sold in the open market. Doyle is still in custody.

The bonds will be brought to Washington and will be examined to ascertain their original numbers. This will probably enable the return of the bonds to the owners should they prove genuine. Doyle left New York on last Tuesday. The Secret Service agents at New York telegraphed Chief Brooks Doyle's departure. He supposed to have in his possession a large amount of counterfeit money. This infor-mation was the real cause of his arrest in Chicago, although he was given to understand that he was taken in custody as a Government defaulter,
